President's Column

"If you want to be successful, it's just this simple. Know what you are doing. Love what you are doing. And believe in what you are doing."

~ Will Rogers

Will Rogers was always known as someone that could distill major, important life matters down to simple and understandable words and principles. Our organization is purposed for those that do know what they're doing, love what they do and believe in what our industry does.

Know what you are doing Please see the training schedules offered and shown in this newsletter. The WQAW offers both Cram Sessions and our Installer's Course Webinar series for all your Journeyman Plumbing Restricted license candidates. Please be sure to take advantage of both WQAW and national WQA training so that you and all your employees know what you're doing!

The annual WQAW Convention is coming up soon. As always, we'll have several instructional and informative sessions of education. Those sessions will provide continuing education credits for WQA licensed personnel as well as CE hours for your licensed plumbers. Again, know what you're doing!

Love what you are doing The annual WQAW Convention is a great time to renew friendships, spend some quality time with like-minded people and, maybe above all, share in your knowledge and experience. Families are encouraged to attend and enjoy the weekend- maybe in the pool? Be an early bird registrant with the materials in this newsletter or find the on-line link on our website wat: WQAW.com.

Believe in what you are doing Service to our communities and customers makes our businesses what they are today. I do believe that our members are committed at a far higher level than many to most other industries. In my own case, we are celebrating 70 years in water treatment- and I'm sure others have even more years to celebrate. Will Rogers' quote is simple, yet profound. If you believe, you will be successful.

I wish for your ongoing success! Have a great Wisconsin summer and I hope to see you at the annual convention in September!

Legislative & Regulatory Update

By Michelle Kussow, The Capitol Group, LLC

LEGISLATIVE

The June 30th deadline for completion of the state's biennial budget has come and gone. The budget writing committee, the Joint Finance Committee, finished their work on most of the budget in May with a few controversial sections unresolved: taxes, transportation and K-12 spending.

Luckily for us, we are not like Congress or other states which enter into a government shutdown if the budget has not passed. In Wisconsin if there is a budget delay, state agencies continue to operate at their current appropriation levels until the new budget is in effect.

For WQAW members, there are a few items of interest that have been resolved and several more that are unresolved. Here's a quick rundown:

Resolved Issues

- Eliminating the state forestry tax which will save homeowners about $27/year on property taxes.
- Language eliminating the Plumbers Council and other DSPS boards was removed—meaning that the groups will continue.
- Creating an Occupational Licensing Review Council to make recommendations on credentialed DSPS Programs

Unresolved Issues

- A $204 million income tax reduction
- Repeal or phase out of the Personal Property Tax
- Transportation Spending (to bond or to tax?)
- Additional Transportation spending to keep four major highway projects on track

As far as predictions on what the final budget will look like? Not a chance. Keep in mind that the Governor has the final say on the state budget and has line item veto power meaning he can completely strike out an item or modify it to his liking.

REGULATORY

The Wisconsin DNR will be revising NR 812 which regulates licensing, construction and inspection of wells and water systems. Of specific interest to many in our industry is subchapter III which regulates water treatment, disinfection, flushing and sampling.

The WQAW Board met with the DNR to identify potential areas of concern and areas that need clarification. At this time, specific changes to the rule have not been identified and the DNR is meeting with stakeholders for suggested revisions. The WQAW Board and The Capitol Group will continue to work with the DNR as they go through the process to make changes to the rule.

If you work with wells, are familiar with NR 812 and have suggestions on changes that should/could be made to the rules, please contact Michelle Kussow at The Capitol Group at 608-210-3304.

Texting and Driving

Reprinted with permission: DMV.ORG

Because it's a common—even daily—activity for most people, sending a text doesn't seem dangerous. However, when you're doing it behind the wheel, there are a litany of other factors at play. Driving is a privilege because of the inherent risk and responsibility we all need to assume out on the road.

When you choose to text and drive, you're threatening every single driver around you—and placing more value on that text message than yourself and your fellow drivers.

Texting & Driving Statistics

It can be hard to grasp the dangers of texting and driving, but once you know the facts, this hazardous habit starts to become a reality. In the United States:

- 26% of all car crashes in 2014 involved cell phone use.
- At least 9 people are killed every day because of a distracted driver.
- More than 1,000 people are injured every day due to a distracted driver.
- 34% of teens who are 16 to 17 years old say they have texted while driving—and texting and driving is the leading cause of death in teens.

As you can see, texting while driving has very real consequences that will only get worse unless we work together to make these statistics a thing of the past.

A Trifecta of Driving Distractions

Texting and driving is especially dangerous because it incorporates all types of driving distractions:

- Visual: Takes your eyes off the road.
- Manual: Takes your hands off the steering wheel.
- Cognitive: Takes your focus away from safe driving.

When you're engulfed in a texting conversation, it's easy to forget you're sharing the road with other people. In just the 5 seconds it takes to send or read a short text message, you've already zoomed past the length of a football field (traveling at 55 MPH) with minimal attention on the road ahead.

Would you want a family member or friend to be on the road with someone so oblivious to the traffic around them? Remember, every time you get behind the wheel, you're entering a shared experience with mothers, fathers, friends, and children.

It is every driver's responsibility to always be careful and attentive, ensuring everyone can safely get from Point A to Point B.

Texting & Driving Is Illegal

With the rise of smart phones and social media, more and more people—especially Millennials—prefer to communicate via text. A majority of U.S. states have passed laws to keep up with the corresponding increase in texting and driving.

The penalties for texting while driving could include any of the following:

- Hefty fines.
- License suspension.
- Rise in auto insurance rates.
- Prison time.

Is sending that text worth the financial burden? Is it worth risking your freedom? More so, is it worth the emotional damage a car accident causes to everyone involved?

The consequences you'll face for texting and driving are similar to those you'd get for another one of the most serious driving offenses: DUI. If you'd never drive drunk, then you'd NEVER text and drive—driving with a BAC of just 0.01% increases your chances of causing a car crash by 46%, according to a 2014 study.

Moreover, texting while driving can put you at a higher risk for an accident than drinking and driving. How's that for sobering?

Break the Habit

Whether you're reading this on your own OR because you're concerned about someone who's likely to text and drive, know that there are ways to break this habit.

If you're the parent of a teen driver, consider installing an application designed to fight distracted driving on your child's smartphone. Teens make up the largest portion of people involved in distracted driving accidents—certain apps can help to combat this by:

- Tracking the miles your teen has driven without incident.
- Sending you notifications.
- Blocking texts and calls from coming in.
- Rewarding your teen for hitting safe driving milestones.

For more helpful suggestions on speaking to your teen or employees about driving distractions, head over to Distracted Driving guide. Remember, YOU set the example.

Be sure to invite your friends and family to take the pledge to end distracted driving. Taking this commitment seriously can lead to safer roads, fewer crashes, and most of all, fewer completely preventable fatalities.

Work with your loved ones on strategies to decrease the chances of texting while driving. If you know you'll be driving, give those with whom you normally communicate a heads up. Then, once you've reached your destination, let them know you're free to text and talk as usual.

Finally, if you're in the car with someone who's texting and driving, DON'T HESITATE to tell them to stop. Give them the facts—they're putting your life in danger, not to mention the lives of everyone else on the road just for the chance to send a text message. There's no shame in making the roads a safer

Wisconsin's Inattentive Driving Law

A bill to expand Wisconsin's current inattentive driving laws was recently introduced in the Legislature. The bill expands the distracted driving statute to include entering, transmitting, or accessing data while driving, increases the minimum penalty for data-distracted driving to $100, and clarifies that a death caused by data-distracted driving constitutes homicide by negligent use of a vehicle.

Under the bill, the specific references under the inattentive driving statutes related to text messages and email are replaced by a broader definition of transmitting or accessing data while using an interactive electronic device. There are exemptions in the bill for verbal communications and navigation. Penalties are increased from a minimum $20 fine, to a minimum $100 fine. In addition, the bill makes clear that data-distracted driving constitutes negligent operation of a vehicle.

Over the last two years, the number of deaths on Wisconsin roads related to distracted driving has increased by more than 68%. Last year alone, there were over 25,000 distracted driving accidents resulting in more than 11,000 injuries in Wisconsin.

This bill is expected to become a law by the end of the year.
